Write an article for the Mosaic!

Share your culture and experiences with the Highline community – write an article for the Mosaic international student newsletter! The Mosaic contains articles, pictures, information and essays by, for and about students from around the globe. Here are a few details:

Topics: Share what you love about your culture or homeland, or tell us about a cultural experience from your life.

Length: Articles should be 250-350 words. We also accept poems, artwork or photos, or other ways to express culture, so if you have an idea, just let us know!

Deadline: February 1st (We publish the Mosaic twice per quarter, so send us an article any time and we can put it in the next issue.)

Contact information: Koto Haramiishi, kharamiishi@highline.edu.

GET INVOLVED!

We need Winter Dance volunteers!

The Winter Dance is coming in February and we need YOUR help to make it awesome! If you would like to participate, please contact the ILSC at ILSC@highline.edu, or stop by the ISP office to meet with Jenith, Koto, Jisu or Michael in person!

Let’s make this year’s dance the BEST EVER!!!

Pay your respects to Bruce Lee
Lake View Cemetery is at 1554 15th Ave E., Seattle
Open 9:00am to dusk every day

Martial arts star Bruce Lee and his son Brandon are buried at Lake View Cemetery in Seattle. Thousands of people each year visit the gravesite to pay their respects.

Bruce Lee’s grave is about halfway up the hill. Follow the car path up the hill as it turns right, and a small stone-paved path leads down to the graves of Lee and his son (this map shows the location of the grave in the cemetery). Lake View Cemetery asks that visitors stay on the roads, and respect the privacy of other visitors, especially if there is a service in progress. Bicycling, skateboarding and dogs are not allowed.

Boeing Museum of Flight
9404 E. Marginal Way S., Seattle
Open daily, 10:00am to 5:00pm
Adult Admission: $20

The Museum of Flight is one of the largest air and space museums in the world. The Museum’s collection includes over 150 historically significant air- and spacecraft, as well as the original manufacturing facility of The Boeing Co., the original papers of the Wright brothers, and the NASA Space Shuttle Trainer, used to train every space shuttle astronaut since the inception of the program. Among the most popular exhibits at the Museum are the world’s first fighter plane, the first jet Air Force One, the prototype Boeing 747, the West Coast’s only Concorde, and the world’s fastest aircraft – the Blackbird spy plane.

Regular adult admission is $20, but there a couple of ways to save! Admission is free on the first Thursday of each month from 5:00-9:00pm. Also, adult admission is reduced to $12 the day following a Seahawks win during the 2015/2016 season! GO HAWKS!

Seattle Aquarium

Science Seminar: Data Science and Big Data
Friday, January 29
1:30 pm
3-102

Data Science and Big Data: How big is “Big” and why do we care?

The phrase “Big Data” has been a big buzz in the last few years and continued to gain traction. In the meantime, information technology (IT) professionals are scrambling to learn how to deal with a humongous amount of data while those in other disciplines (e.g. biologists) are concerned with how their prescribed professions will gradually change and demand this new skill set. Come to this seminar and un-myth Big Data.

Chilly Hilly: Bainbridge bike ride
February 28, 2016

Bicycling Magazine called Chilly Hilly one of four classic American rides. Take your bike on the ferry, enjoy a 33-mile bike ride around the hills of Bainbridge Island and end with a warm meal. It’s guaranteed to be hilly, probably chilly and always a heck of a lot of fun. So get the dust off of your bike and get ready for cycling season early!

For information and registration, please visit http://www.cascade.org/rides-major-rides/chilly-hilly.
The inspiration for Pixar’s “Up”: Edith Macefield House

1438 NW 46th St, Seattle, Washington 98107

In the Ballard neighborhood of Seattle, there’s a huge shopping mall with a strange hole in the center of the building. Inside that gap sits a tiny house with an amazing story that some say inspired Pixar’s “UP.”

Edith Macefield's tiny house has become a cherished part of folk legend in the city after the 84-year-old woman who owned it refused to sell her house to developers looking to build a shopping mall. Even as the offers climbed to a million dollars, Edith forced developers to build around her, becoming an anti-gentrification folk hero worthy of festivals and even tattoos in the process.

After Edith passed away, plans were set in motion to save her property as a public park, but until then, you can still see her tiny house in the shadow of a shopping mall.

Statue of Viking Leif Erikson

7001 Seaview Ave. NW
Seattle, WA 98177

Originally a gift from the Leif Erikson League for the 1962 World's Fair, this strange statue now stands in honor of the Viking trailblazer that discovered America a full five hundred years before Christopher Columbus. The statue is a unique piece of Ballard's past worth a visit to the Shilshole Marina with gorgeous views of the Olympic Mountain Range.

Archie McPhee

1300 N 45th St, Seattle, Washington 98103

Yeah, you could buy your friends a Space Needle keychain, but wouldn't they rather have a dress-up Bigfoot or cupcake flavored toothpaste? At Ballard's Archie McPhee, you can find some of the absolute weirdest novelty toys you've ever seen in a store filled with stuff you don't need at all, but desperately want.

Singing pickles, unicorn horns for your cat, and boxes of old military equipment - you'll buy this stuff to give to friends, but we all know you're going to keep it for yourself.

The Fremont Troll

3405 Troll Ave N, Seattle, WA 98103

The Fremont Troll is a public sculpture in the Fremont neighborhood of Seattle. It is clutching an actual Volkswagen Beetle. The vehicle has a California license plate. People are encouraged to climb over the troll, as long as they are respectful.
